

Justice Africa Sudan Statement on the International Day of Democracy 15 September 2026

On this International Day of Democracy, Justice Africa Sudan stands in solidarity with the Sudanese people in their struggle for freedom, peace, and justice.

We reiterate that the democratic movement in Sudan must unite to confront the forces of darkness and evil that continue to derail our nation's social, economic, and democratic progress. These forces deny our people prosperity, dignity, and the right to live with decency and hope.

We call for an immediate end to the ongoing war that has devastated lives and torn communities apart. Sudan's future must be restored to civil, democratic rule a system that reflects the will of the people and safeguards their fundamental rights.

Justice and accountability are essential. All perpetrators of heinous crimes must be held to account, and victims must receive the justice they deserve. Only through truth, accountability, and reconciliation can Sudan move forward toward lasting peace and democratic transformation.

On this day, we reaffirm our commitment to the principles of democracy and call upon all Sudanese democratic forces to unite in the struggle for a free, just, and prosperous Sudan. The people of Sudan deserve nothing less than a life of dignity, peace, and justice.
